AMERICAN CIVIL WAR

LINCOLN'S TRIDENT*The West Gulf Blockading Squadron During the Civil WarRobert M. Browning Jr.*

In Lincoln's Trident, Coast Guard historian Robert M. Browning Jr. continues his magisterial series about the Union's naval blockade of the Confederacy during the American Civil War. Established by the Navy Department in 1862, the West Gulf Blockading Squadron operated from St. Andrews Bay (Panama City), Florida to the Rio Grande River. As with the Navy's blockade squadrons operating in the Atlantic, the mission of the West Gulf Blockading Squadron was to cripple the South's economy by halting imports and disrupting cotton exports, the South's main source of hard currency.

Of some twelve thousand Union Civil War surgeons, only fourteen were Black men. This book is the first comprehensive exploration of their lives and service. Jill L. Newmark's outstanding research uncovers stories hidden for more than 150 years, illuminating the unique experiences of proud, patriotic men who fought racism and discrimination to attend medical school and serve with the US military. Their efforts and actions influenced societal change and forged new pathways for African Americans.

CHEROKEE CIVIL WARRIOR

Chief John Ross and the Struggle for Tribal Sovereignty

W. Dale Weeks

For the Cherokee Nation, the Civil War was more than a contest between the Union and the Confederacy. It was yet another battle in the larger struggle against multiple white governments for land and tribal sovereignty. Cherokee Civil Warrior tells the story of Chief John Ross as he led the tribe in this struggle.

DECISIONS AT KENNESAW MOUNTAIN

The Eleven Critical Decisions That Defined the Battle

Larry Peterson

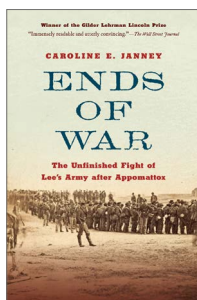

Command Decisions in America's Civil War

Explores the critical decisions made by Confederate and Federal commanders during the Battle of Kennesaw Mountain and how these decisions shaped its outcome. Rather than offering a history of the battle, Larry Peterson hones in on a sequence of command decisions that provides us, retroactively, with a blueprint of the battle at its tactical core.

ENDS OF WAR

The Unfinished Fight of Lee's Army after Appomattox

Caroline E. Janney

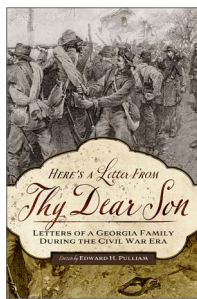

In this dramatic new history of the weeks and months after Appomattox, Caroline Janney reveals that Lee's surrender was less an ending than the start of an interregnum marked by military and political uncertainty, legal and logistical confusion, and continued outbursts of violence.

A REPUBLIC IN THE RANKS

Loyalty and Dissent in the Army of the Potomac
Zachery A. Fry
Civil War America

For decades, historians have been content to view the Army of the Potomac through the prism of its general officer corps. In contrast, this book shifts the emphasis to resurrect the successful efforts of pro administration junior officers who educated their men on the war's political dynamics and laid the groundwork for Lincoln's victory in 1864.

PRZEMYŚL, POLAND

A Multiethnic City During and After a Fortress, 1867-1939

John E. Fahey

Central European Studies

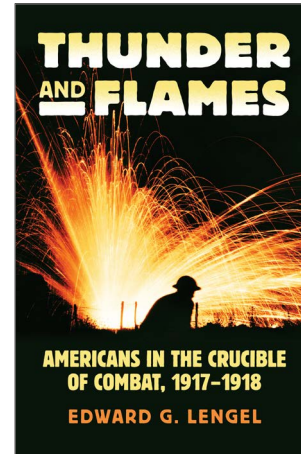

Examines the economic, political, demographic, and cultural ramifications of Austro-Hungarian military investment in Przemyśl, Poland, from the inception of the fortress in the 1870s, through four months of siege in World War I, to the decades of social change before World War II. The city of Przemyśl lies a few miles west of the Poland-Ukraine border. In the decades before World War I, the Austro-Hungarian military poured money, troops, and material into this multi-ethnic city and transformed it into the Empire's largest fortress complex.

THUNDER AND FLAMES

Americans in the Crucible of Combat, 1917-1918

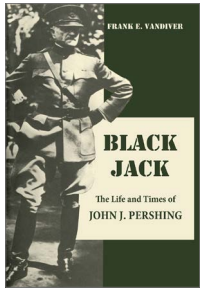

Edward G. Lengel

Following the American Expeditionary Force from their initial landing to their emergence as an independent army in late September 1918, this book presents a complex picture of how, learning warfare on the fly, sometimes with devastating consequences, the American force played a critical role in blunting and then rolling back the German army's drive toward Paris. The picture that emerges is at once sweeping in scope and rich in detail, with firsthand testimony conjuring the real mud and blood of the combat that Edward Lengel so vividly describes. Official reports and documents provide the strategic and historical context for these ground-level accounts, from the perspective of the Germans as well as the Americans and French.

HITLER'S MALADIES AND THEIR IMPACT ON WORLD WAR II

A Behavioral Neurologist's View

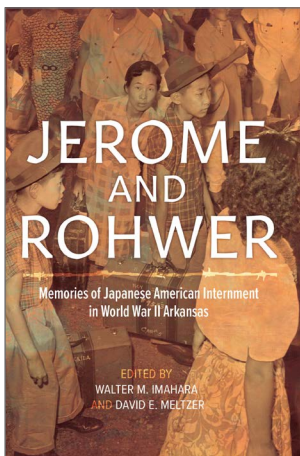

Tom Hutton

Toward the end of World War II, Hitler's many health complications became even more pronounced, making an evil man yet more erratic and dangerous. While the subject of Hitler's health has been catalogued previously, never has it been done so thoroughly or with this level of up-to-date medical expertise. Tom Hutton's new neurobehavioural analysis of Adolf Hitler draws from a lifetime of medical research and clinical experience to understand how the dictator's particular medical history further warped a deformed personality and altered Hitler's decision-making.

JEROME AND ROHWER

Memories of Japanese American Internment in World War II Arkansas

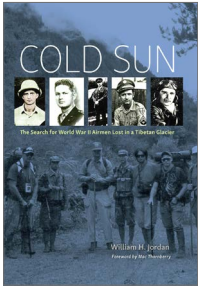

Edited by Walter M. Imahara & David E. Meltzer

Presents a collection of brief memoirs written by former internees of Jerome and Rohwer and their close family members. Here dozens of individuals, almost all of whom are now in their eighties or nineties, share their personal accounts as well as photographs and other illustrations related to their life-changing experiences. The collection, likely to be one of the last of its kind, is the only work composed solely of autobiographical remembrances of life in Jerome and Rohwer, and one of the very few that gathers in a single volume the experiences of internees in their own words.

Culture and Politics in the Cold War and Beyond

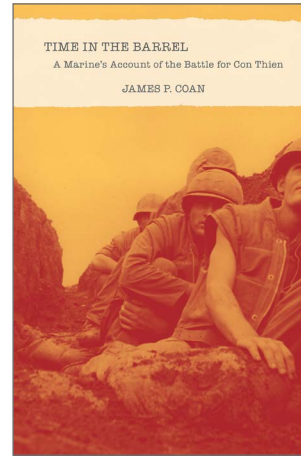

Examines how Black servicemen experienced and interpreted racial issues whilst serving in Vietnam. Drawing on more than fifty interviews and archival research, as well as newspapers, periodicals, memoirs, and documentaries, Gerald Goodwin reveals that for many African Americans the front line and the home front were two sides of the same coin.

TIME IN THE BARREL

A Marine's Account of the Battle for Con Thien

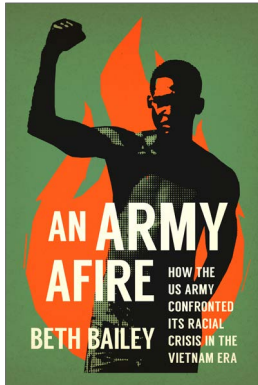

James P. Coan

Offers an authentic first-hand account of the daily nightmare that was Con Thien. An enticing and fascinating read featuring authentic depictions of combat, allowing readers to fully grasp the enormity of the fierce struggle for Con Thien. The defenders of Con Thien were bombarded with hundreds of rounds of incoming rockets, mortars, and artillery that pounded the beleaguered outpost daily. Monsoon downpours turned the red laterite clay soil into a morass of oozing mud, flooded bunkers and trenches, and made Con Thien a living hell.

DUTY TO SERVE, DUTY TO CONSCIENCE

The Story of Two Conscientious Objector Combat Medics during the Vietnam War

James C. Kearney & William H. Clamurro

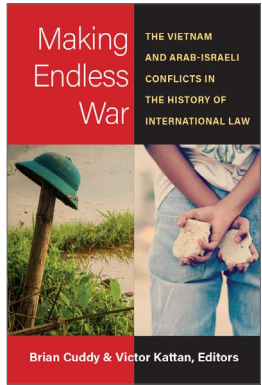

North Texas Military Biography and Memoir Series, Vol. 21

Despite all that has been written about Vietnam, the story of the 1-A-O conscientious objector, who agreed to put on a uniform and serve in the field without weapons rather than accept alternative service outside the military, has received scarce attention. This joint memoir by two 1-A-O combat medics represents a unique approach to the subject.

MAKING ENDLESS WAR

The Vietnam and Arab-Israeli Conflicts in the History of International Law

Edited by Brian Cuddy & Victor Kattan

Law, Meaning, And Violence

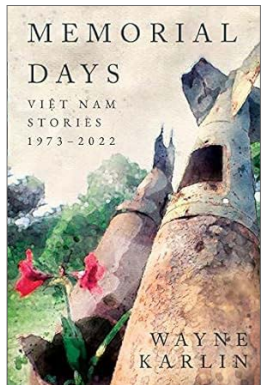

Argues that any attempt to understand how the content and function of the laws of war changed in the second half of the twentieth century should consider two major armed conflicts, fought on opposite edges of Asia, and the legal pathways that link them together across time and space.

MEMORIAL DAYS

Việt Nam Stories, 1973-2022

Wayne Karlin

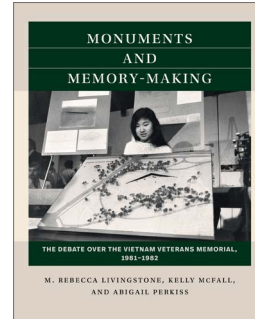

Peace and Conflict

A retrospective collection of one veteran's fifty years of Vietnam short stories. Set during the war and post-war years, the stories that comprise Memorial Days were written from 1973 to the present. As our continuing reappraisals of the war's shadow have unspooled over the last half-decade, so too has Wayne Karlin returned to the subject in his fiction, collected and published together here for the first time.

MONUMENTS AND MEMORY-MAKING

The Debate over the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, 1981-1982

M. Rebecca Livingstone, Kelly McFall & Abigail Perkiss

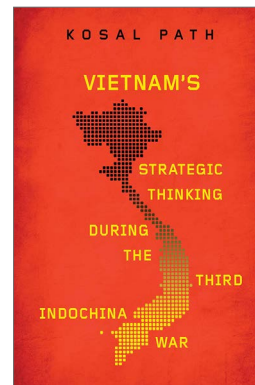

Reacting to the Past™

Immerses students in the conversations and controversies that emerged as the US grappled with how best to memorialise what was at the time the longest military conflict in its history. As students engage in the process of memory-making, they will work to reconcile the varied and often contradictory voices that rose up after the fall of Saigon.

THE HORRIBLE PEACE

British Veterans and the End of the Napoleonic Wars

Evan Wilson

Veterans

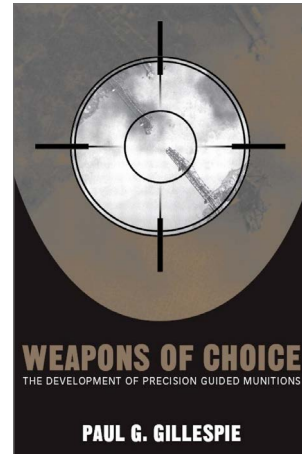

Few battles in world history provide a cleaner dividing line than Waterloo: before, there was Napoleon; after, there was the Pax Britannica. While Waterloo marked France's defeat and Britain's ascendance as an imperial power, the war was far from over for many soldiers and sailors, who were forced to contend with the lasting effects of battlefield trauma, the realities of an impossibly tight labour market, and growing social unrest. The Horrible Peace details a story of distress and discontent, of victory complicated by volcanism, and of the challenges facing Britain at the beginning of its victorious century.

WEAPONS OF CHOICE

The Development of Precision Guided Munitions

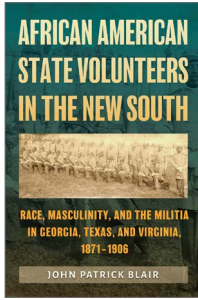

Paul G. Gillespie

The prospect of pinpoint delivery of weapons right to the enemy's door by speeding aircraft seems to presage war in which the messy and politically risky deployment of ground troops is unnecessary. The potential of such weapons, and their strategic limitations, made the Gulf War and Iraqi War living theatre for assessing what such weapons can and cannot do and have important implications for planning for future warfare.

THE CUTTING-OFF WAY

Indigenous Warfare in Eastern North America, 1500-1800

Wayne E. Lee

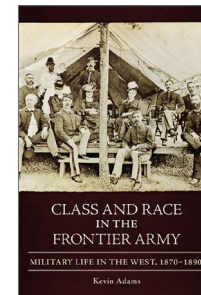

In a mix of classic and new essays, Wayne Lee shows that Indigenous people lacked deep reserves of population systems for coercive military recruitment and as such were wary of heavy casualties. Instead, they generally sought to surprise their targets, and the size of the target varied with the size of the attacking force.
